Other medicines, such as chemotherapy medicines and medicines to lower cholesterol, have potential harmful interactions when combined with vitamin E supplements. Free radicals cause cell damage through oxidative stress, and have been linked to aging and health problems, such as cancer and heart disease. At certain doses, it has been shown that vitamin E stimulates the function of T cells "a type of cell that responds to disease-causing pathogens. It is important to discuss any vitamin E level out of range with your doctor.
